

Bay St. Louis consultant outlines city study plan

BY TRACI BONNEY
Bay St. Louis city consultant Jules Lagarde explained to the city council and a standing-room-only audience Friday his proposed schedule and structure for the comprehensive city study recently commissioned by the council.

Lagarde explained the steps of each part of the three-phase feasibility/design guidelines/zoning study, then opened the meeting for questions from the audience.

Tension was high in the room, and outbursts greeted several people's statements. Council chairman Charles Sciana reprimanded audience members more than once for their behavior.

Rev. Dwyn Mounger asked Lagarde if local residents will be surveyed about views on locations for gaming operations.

Lagarde said the firm did plan to survey local residents. CONSULTANTS—Page 5A

Parent opposition voiced to plan for combined HHS booster club

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Hancock County School board listened Monday as Ray Billeaud, representing the 50-Yard Line Booster Club at Hancock High School, voiced objection to a proposal made on May 9 to unite the existing three booster clubs into one.

Billeaud pointed out that distribution of funds among the various athletics would become a problem since support of particular sports differed.

The 50-Yard Line Booster Club, for instance, supports football. Parents contributing their time to support one sport feel their work efforts should be dedicated solely to that sport.

Billeaud expressed the club's concern for the development of other sports but through separate clubs.

He also pointed out that parents have a right to decide where the rewards of their work should be designated.

Following Billeaud's presentation of the 50-Yard Line Booster Club's position, board president Frank Miller asked the board to be ready to make a decision on the matter by next month's regularly scheduled meeting.

Landrum's offers curbside recycling to local residents

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Waveland, Bay St. Louis, Bayside Park and Shoreline Park (west of Hwy. 603) residents have available a curbside recycling service that takes the hassle out of keeping America beautiful.

Tom and Cindy Landrum are Bayside Park residents who for several months have been operating a curbside recycling business. Though, at present the Landrums are barely keeping their business afloat, they are providing a service to the community in response to an issue about which much is said but little is done.

The most often heard complaint about why people do not recycle is the word "inconvenient."

Those who don't do it claim it is a "pain" to sort the materials, stack them, box them, bag them, tie them up and then deliver them.

Well, the Landrums are willing to sort the materials, if you rinse them out. Glass, plastic, tin and aluminum can all go into one container.

The only product they ask you to separate is newspaper from all other paper, and all other paper includes cereal boxes, cardboard, junk mail, advertising inserts, etc.

Landrum's Recycling Service provides each customer with an 18-gallon bin. They pick up in Waveland on Tuesdays and in Bay St. Louis, Bayside Park and the portion of Shoreline

Gulfview paving approved

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The Hancock County School Board accepted the lowest of four bids Monday, awarding W.A. Warren Construction Company the contract to pave Gulfview Elementary's parking area and to complete the widening and paving of the Hancock High School bus turnaround.

The entire project cost is $73,827. Approximately $62,000 of the cost is dedicated to the Gulfview parking lot project, while the difference will pay for the high school work.

Bids were opened during the May 21 meeting and placed under advisement until the time each could be approved by the appropriate department head.

A request was approved by the board for the district to petition the Mississippi State Department of Education, Division of Textbooks, for the adoption of the Agriscience Fundamentals and Applications textbooks along with the Agriscience and Technology textbooks.

According to Superintendent Terrell Randolph, the high school presently teaches a class in agriculture, and hopefully in the new school year, it will also include a class in the more wide-ranging agriscience.

The agriscience class will be of a different format in that it includes aquaculture (the farming of fish and shellfish), animal husbandry and forestry.

Randolph supports the position that in a coastal community such as Hancock County, tomorrow's job holders will benefit from the information available through the new class.

Other business included board approval of matters related to spending and finances, agreements, projects, resignations, hirings, sponsorships and travel.

Confrontation interrupts Bay city council meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY AND T.H. (DOC) TOUPS

During the Bay St. Louis City Council meeting Friday, the capacity audience was shocked out of its attentive listening to city consultant Jules Lagarde by a loud thud in the lobby, followed by the sound of Mayor Edward Favre admonishing someone.

The meeting was held to hear Lagarde's plans for preliminary work with Buckhurst Fish Hut-ton Katz Inc. of New York and Economics Research Associates of Virginia, who are being hired to conduct a comprehensive city study. The study will address, among other things, the feasibility of dockside gaming in the Bay St. Louis city limits.

Beachfront gaming proponents and opponents packed the council chamber and overflowed into the lobby, where there was standing room only.

As Favre intervened in the confrontation in the lobby, council chairman Charles Sciana, who asked the council's

Outlook poor for shrimp season

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Kirk Ladner of Terry's Seafood in Bayou Cadet (Caddy) reported Wednesday that his business has not broken 100,000 pounds since the opening of the Louisiana shrimping season on May 30.

"Last year we took in over 300,000 pounds of shrimp in the same amount of time," Ladner added.

Ladner said, "It's a disaster. I had 300 boats (contracted to sell their catch to Terry's) that were going to shrimp this season. But after seeing how poor the catches were, they went back home."

He said of the 300 boats planning to shrimp this season only 80 "die-harders" have remained.

Ladner explained that the excessive rainfall has washed fresh water into the Gulf, pushing the shrimp out into deeper waters past the Chandelier Islands.

He said, "Only the larger boats can shrimp that far out." Ladner said the shrimp are coming in smaller in size. "They were 40-50 count last year, whereas they are 70-80 count this year."

The opening of the Mississippi shrimping season Thursday offered no hope to Ladner as he said the state had already announced a limit to the area where shrimping will be allowed.

The Great Gulf Coast Air Show takes off at 9 a.m. today at Stegns International Airport.

clerk to call police, reminded the audience that they were in a public meeting and must control their emotions.

After the meeting, local resident Norma Marrs said she and George Welman were among several people standing in the doorway to the council chamber, trying to listen to Lagarde's answer to a question, when Joe Ethridge grabbed Welman and shoved him backward over a trashcan.

Marrs said she saw Ethridge come into the building scowling and that he grabbed her arm, braced against her and pushed Welman. The force also pushed her back against the wall next to the door, where there is a vertical row of glass panes.

"I don't know why it happened," she added, "but I guess we'll find out."

Welman said he, Marrs, Barry Pincus and some others were standing in the doorway when the incident occurred.

"I was standing at the entrance to the chambers, when the next thing I know someone's grabbing me with both hands and throwing me back against the trashcan. When I look up, I see it's Joe Ethridge," Welman said. He added that he never heard Ethridge ask to be let through the doorway.

Ethridge said he neither saw nor pushed Marrs. However, he said he thought Welman tried to prevent him from entering the meeting.

Ethridge commented, "Unfortunately, there is a certain element involved in promoting dockside gambling that will resort to coercive tactics to try to intimidate citizens who have legitimate concerns over the problem gambling will cause in the community."

"I regret that I have been the target of such tactics, but I believe anyone who knows me will see how ridiculous the whole thing is. I do think, however, that it shows the degree of deviousness that has impacted our community over dockside gambling."

Welman filed a charge against Ethridge with Municipal Judge George Lipscomb, who could not be reached for comment as of press time.

Ethridge said he went to the Bay St. Louis Police Department of his own accord, accepted the charge and paid the minimum bond set, and awaits the setting of a court date.

The confrontation between the two men is not the first. At a Friends of Bay St. Louis meeting the previous night, Ethridge included Welman in a reference to dockside gaming proponents as "basically a group of people from outside of Bay St. Louis" who were out for quick profits without regard to the impact on the local residents.

"We deal with a lot of elderly people," Tom Landrum said, "who only need a pickup once a month."

Landrum said within his own family, their trash accumulation went from four bags per week to one bag per week since they have begun to recycle.

Landrum's customers have just peaked at 100. He reported that from January 1 to May 31 they processed 14.5 tons of refuse which otherwise would have gone into some unknown hole in the earth.

Local salons donate services to benefit Family Child Center

BY TRACI BONNEY

How can a haircut help prevent child abuse?

Next Saturday, June 15, 12 area salons are going to demonstrate how this can happen during the Hancock County Exchange Club's cutathon.

The following salons have pledged to donate all service revenues generated by their customers during the posted hours: Trend Setters, 9 a.m.-noon; Hairworks, 1-5 p.m.; Styles by Sheila, noon-3 p.m.; Herbie's, 9 a.m.-noon; Ruth's, 8 a.m.-noon; M.J. Joshua, 8-10 a.m.; Mane Attraction, 8 a.m.-noon; Pama, 1-4 p.m.; Hair It Is!, 10 a.m.-2 p.m.; Magic Touch, 1-5 p.m.; Classic Cuts, 3-5 p.m.; and Hair Expressions by Tami, 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

Keith Mitchell, whose wife

Jan owns Hairworks, said some of the money generated will be used to bring the national Exchange Club telethon to local TV stations for four hours. In turn, the telethon is expected to bring in up to $20,000 in pledges for the South Mississippi Exchange Clubs Family Child Center.

Mitchell said the amount needed for the four-hour broadcast is $1,000 to $1,500, but "we believe the cutathon will generate much more than that."

The Family Child Center serves the Gulf Coast with programs that help families in need of counseling and other assistance, acquaint child abuse victims with the court process, and coordinate state and local investigative agencies in abuse cases.

Theresa Heath of Trend Setters originated the idea. She said her salon participates in two charitable activities each year and was looking for something to do. A member of the Exchange Club, she thought supporting the Family Child Center in some way would be a good activity for the salon.

"Some other salon owners heard about it, and it just mushroomed from there," she commented. "This year the event is countywide, but our goal for next year is to go Coastwide with it."

She said each salon will hold an in-shop raffle with prizes donated from various local businesses for those customers who can't make it to the salon June 15. The proceeds from the raffles will also go to benefit the Family Child Center.

Mitchell, who also mentioned the idea of taking the cutathon Coastwide next year, said of this year's countywide event, "It's a phenomenal example of what people will do if you ask them. It's also a great example of what the Exchange Club is about."

"On our logo you can see that it says 'Unity for Service.' That's what this event is. It brings together local business people in a highly competitive field to do something that will benefit the Family Child Center, which in turn benefits us through its work."

Compretta named to NCSL Law and Justice Committee

Representative J. P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis has been named to represent the Mississippi House of Representatives on the Law and Justice Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL).

The committee is one of 11 standing committees of NCSL's State-Federal Assembly, the National Conference's policy making body. The State-Federal Assembly is responsible for the NCSL's lobbying efforts before Congress, the White House and federal agencies.

Compretta is chairman of the House Local and Private Legislation Committee and former chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Performance Evaluation and Expenditure Review (PEER). Other committee assignments in the House include Conservation and Water Resources; Judiciary "A"; Ways and Means; and State Library.

He also serves on the Legislative Oversight Committee of the Mississippi Home Corporation, and was a member of the Select Committee on Economic Development in the 1990 Legislative Session.

"As a member of the Law and Justice Committee, I will be able to voice concerns specific to our state as well as the concerns of state legislatures nationwide," Compretta said. "Many federal actions have serious consequences on the states, and we are able to have an impact on these issues through the NCSL and the State-Federal Assembly."

The State-Federal Assembly convenes three times a year to meet with federal officials and develop recommendations on a wide range of national issues affecting state-federal relations.

Among issues high on the agenda this year are drug control strategies and federal preemption of state laws such as those relating to consumer protection.

NCSL represents the legislators and staffs of the nation's 50 states, commonwealths and territories. Its three basic objectives are to improve the quality and effectiveness of state legislatures; to promote interstate communication and cooperation; and to assure state legislatures a strong, cohesive voice in the federal system.

Other positions Compretta has held on the national level in recent years include serving on the Science, Technology and Resource Planning Committee of the NCSL, and the national committee on Suggested State Legislation of the Council of State Governments.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I hope damage caused by lightning this past week is not fatal to the large evergreen oak located on Beach Boulevard, Bay St. Louis, in front of the Hotel Reed Nursing Home.

It is hard to 'guesstimate' the age of the oak, but if what I have been hearing is true, it should be well over 100 years old.

I have talked to several city officials and have been told they will have an expert check the tree and see if some 'first aid' can be administered to it.

"If only a tree could talk," is an expression we hear at times, and I am sure this majestic oak could tell many tales.

The tree is located only a few feet from where U.S.-90 crossed the Bay of St. Louis for so many years, and it has survived so many killer hurricanes standing in the open on the water's edge and has possibly been struck by lightning previously.

I will be keeping my fingers crossed that the oak tree will survive its latest misfortune.

An American Red Cross Blood Drawing will be Wednesday, June 12, at the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139, Green Meadow Road, Bay St. Louis.

J.D. (Big John) Rutherford, longtime Hancock County blood drawing chairman, is seeking all the assistance he can in order to reach a goal of 100 units at this drawing.

During summer months blood supplies are usually low, and it is important that a successful drive is held. Red Cross requirements call for a person to be age 17 or older and physically able in order to donate a unit of blood.

The drawing will be from 1 to 7 p.m., and I know there are many volunteers such as doctors, nurses and others who assist with the drawing.

I am hoping Big John will will exceed the goal of 100 units.

This is a reminder that the annual St. Clare Old-Fashioned Fair and Seafood Festival on Beach Boulevard in Waveland continues through today.

Also the Gulf Coast Air Show, sponsored by the Experimental Aircraft Association Chapter 479 and Gulf Coast Air Race Association, is in its second day today.

I received an unsigned letter from a former Bay High graduate this past week commenting about this year's graduation exercises.

The letter was complimentary to the graduates for the 12 years of work they had completed and wishing them the best in the years to come.

The letter then went on to comment about several happenings which spoiled the evening for him and probably for the graduates and their families, too.

One thing was the extreme heat in the gym, next was the fact that half of those in attendance talked throughout the entire ceremony. This was attributed to probably being bored because the public address system was so inadequate, no one could hear the speakers.

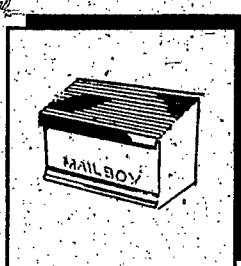

The graduate of 25 years ago said the 1991 students graduated under worse conditions than his class and at triple the cost.

I did not attend the graduation, but if the above is correct, I hope it will be corrected next graduation.

HHS blood drive

The Hancock High School Student Council and Students Against Drunk Driving recently sponsored a blood drive. Some 117 students, parents and teachers attempted to give blood. The two clubs collected a total of 76 units of blood, exceeding their goal of 60 units. Kim Sones is shown donating. Another Red Cross Blood Drawing will be held Wed., June 12, 1 to 7 p.m. at the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139, Green Meadow Road, Bay St. Louis.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Friends of Bay could save day by buying beach front property

To the Editor:

On Thursday, June 6, the "Friends of Bay St. Louis" met to discuss how to prevent gaming in the only two commercial locations in Bay St. Louis.

According to the comments I heard on the news (WLOX, 10 p.m.), there were no logical reasons why gaming should be excluded from these areas.

Personally, I have no problem with the "evils" of gambling, which again, is only one more way to dispose of disposable income.

However, Mr. Joe Etheridge made a comment I feel compelled to address. He said that, "They (the gaming proponents) are only interested in making a buck, and really don't care about Bay St. Louis."

Well, I will agree with part of his statement and take exception to the second part. Yes, you can believe I'm interested in making a buck! I have a wife and three young children I'm trying to provide for. It seems very easy for a man who owns a multimillion dollar factory in Harrison County to pass judgment on those of us who want to use our commercial property (which we've owned for years) to build a clean, legal industry.

In response to the second part of his comment, our "not caring about Bay St. Louis," I can only say, bull do!.

Further, I will take this opportunity to offer Mr. Etheridge a chance to put his money where his mouth is, since money should not be an issue, and give him, and for that matter all the "Friends of Bay St. Louis," an option to lease or purchase our property on South Beach Boulevard in downtown Bay St. Louis.

If Mr. Etheridge and the so-called "Friends of Bay St. Louis" are really interested in saving our "beautiful, historic" district, they will jump at this offer.

This is the only fair way to solve this dilemma. And folks, please hurry! My rent, car note, insurance, utilities, etc., are due!

Blood drive scheduled Wednesday; donors needed

Dear Editor,

The American Red Cross Mobile Unit will be at the American Legion Home, Post 139 in Bay St. Louis, Wednesday, June 12 from 1 to 7 p.m. Our quota for this blood drawing is 100 units.

We know you are aware of the importance to the life and health of our community to have blood available at all times, and that to do this we need your help.

Will you please assist by requesting your members and employees, members of their families and friends who are physically able and 17 years old or older to come in Wednesday, June 12, and donate a unit of blood.

—Location of the state line between Mississippi and Louisiana was the key issue Wednesday in the trials of four Hancock County shrimp fishermen recently accused of fishing in closed waters. Justice Court Judge Lee Klein referred to the four as 'scape goats or Judas goats' and stated, "The issue had to come to a head." A controversy over the enforcement of the correct state boundary arose shortly after Louisiana's opening shrimp day.

MEC volunteers making a difference

For the 43rd time in as many years, state business, industry and professional leaders met in Jackson a few days ago to continue a process of narrowing the gap between the potential and the reality of Mississippi's economic future.

More than 200 men and women, volunteering their time and talent to improve their state, met to begin implementing the 1991-92 program of work of the Mississippi Economic Council.

During the coming 11 months, these volunteers from across Mississippi will carry out specific assignments under the direction of the MEC Board of Directors.

Among the assignments are tasks that will expand business involvement in education improvement, address the need to upgrade basic government services known as infrastructure, provide information on critical environmental issues, and prepare to seek additional fairness in the civil justice system from the 1992 Legislature.

Similar volunteer efforts have led to creation of an appointed State Board of Education and appointment of the State Superintendent of Education, statewide property tax equalization and uniform assessment of property, enactment of uniform school laws and other significant achievements.

"It would be foolish not to do so," he stated.

Mounger asked Lagarde if he knew of any business that had so many people opposed to its advent into the area, and Lagarde responded that his responsibility is to see that an objective study is conducted, not to make a judgement on the matter of dockside gaming.

Donald Saucier asked about the time frame of the three-phase study. Lagarde said that, among other details, will be settled later this week when representatives from Buckhurst Fish Hutton Katz Inc. and Economics Research Associates come to Bay St. Louis to meet with Lagarde and the council.

Saucier also asked if the a city study has been done before this time. Lagarde named two or three, but said none were as comprehensive as this one is intended to be.

Hal Williams, a strong gaming proponent, made several remarks from a prepared speech, then asked if during the explanation of the study's steps Lagarde was referring to tax income or total income that would come into the city from ing the arrangements and cutting costs where possible. Franya Ethridge asked about the use of the word "feasibility." She said it appeared to her that the focus of the study was strictly on numbers and was not taking into account the logistics of bringing dockside gaming into the city.

Lagarde explained that the feasibility from a numbers standpoint would give the consultant a base from which to study the logistical feasibility of dockside gaming.

Deborah Alford asked at what point in the study the recommendation about the "acceptability" of gaming will be made.

Lagarde pointed out that under state law the city cannot decide gaming is unacceptable; but can only regulate the number, size and location of gaming facilities. He said the third phase of the study includes the preparation of three plans for regulating gaming, the evaluation of those plans and the selection of the best one.

Alford asked if any gaming operators can come in before the study is complete and the regulations are in place.

Mayor Favre answered, saying a slim possibility does exist of that happening, but the various state regulatory agencies involved in licensing and permitting gaming operations have been asked to cooperate with the city and not issue the permits or licenses until the city is ready to regulate gaming.

Jerry Fisher commented that he thinks the study's purpose is to appease those opposed to gaming, to show them that it will work in Bay St. Louis, more than anything else.

"It's just such a shame that it's going to be bogged down with questions that have been asked since the P&Z meetings (in January)," he said.

After several more remarks, he thanked the council for their work, then suggested that everyone, both for and against gaming, stay out of the way of the consultants while they are conducting the study.

Scianna then asked Lagarde if he had any closing remarks, but he said he had none.

The meeting was adjourned.

Jerry Fisher expresses his opinion that the study is to appease gaming opponents.

Lagarde said his interest was not in doing the gaming developers' work, but in finding out how much the city would gain from the $2.50/person boarding fee and the $100 per machine/game tax allowed in Bay St. Louis by the state, and how much the city would need to offset the infrastructure costs involved with gaming.

Williams attempted to give Lagarde several figures, but Scianna stopped him, saying his three minutes to speak were over.

Dot diBenedetto asked if the projected crime rate will be taken into account during the course of the study. Lagarde assured her it will.

Barbara Kergosien asked if the impact on Hancock Medical Center will be studied. Lagarde said it is being built into the study "in a general sense."

She then asked how she can "qualify" to speak to the consultants during their survey, "since I have seven — six of my seven — children returning to Bay St. Louis if the town is still here, after this."

An outburst of laughter greeted that remark. Lagarde asked Kergosien to repeat her question, then told her he and the consultants would work the details of the survey out along with other matters. He also said a number of public input meetings were planned.

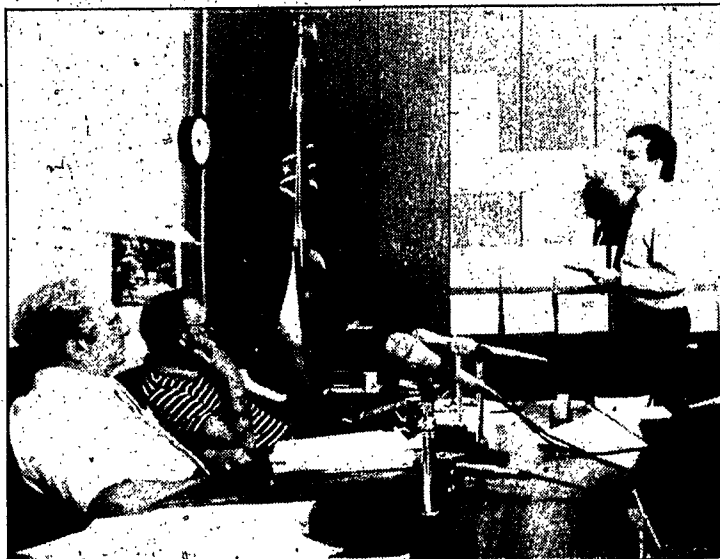

Evelyn Gordon said she was confused about the time schedule and expressed her concern about the residents being allowed to give input before the first phase of study is complete.

Lagarde said the schedule is a proposed one, not yet set. He said he will take into consideration the wishes of those who want public input to be included throughout the study.

Peggy Smith asked if the proposed annexation of the Bay Cove area is being taken into account. Lagarde said it isn't at present, but can be added in at a later date if necessary.

She said she thought the annexation should be considered if the city was paying $100,000 for the study. Lagarde corrected her, saying the study is expected to cost $78,000 to $96,000, but not $100,000.

Smith asked if travel, lodging and meals are separate from the contract price. Lagarde said they are, but the city is working to minimize those costs by mak-

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

No hands are clean

Editor's note: This article is the last of a three-part series on race relations in the Catholic Church.

Far from shying away from my inclusion as an African American, I welcome it, relate fully to it and rejoice over it. I can live quite well with that designation, but it does gloss over the fact that most blacks seem to have a mixture of American Indian somewhere in their lineage, and many, if not most, have a measure of European in their blood.

For example, my own father's great-grandmother was a Choctaw Indian, and Bishop Carl Fisher has made it known that he is part Native American. Given the fact that Native Americans originated in Asia, a more accurate designation of the vast majority of American blacks would probably be the somewhat clumsy combination of Afro-Asian-Euro-American.

The other inconsistency in the term "African American" is that Frederik W. De Klerk, State President of the Republic of South Africa, would be an African American if he moved to the United States and became a citizen here. Nonetheless, as I said, I can live with the description.

With all this as a preface, my sisters and brothers of the Committee Against Apartheid, let me assure you that I hold no rancor or resentment against you. Whatever I say is said in correction and admonition, not in anger and bitterness. Just as you perceive yourselves as correcting me, so do I, in my turn, see a need for correcting you. Perhaps only God is ultimately able to balance the scale in complete fairness.

From your epithet and charges, you look upon me as a racial traitor and pariah who has sold out to the white powers that be, in that my uppermost goal is "White Acceptance and White Approval."

Once more, let it be a matter of record that I state fearlessly, unequivocally, that I am interested in white acceptance and approval only in the same way that I am interested in black acceptance and approval. Psychologists tell us repeatedly that no human being can be a well-adjusted person without the reassurance of acceptance and belonging.

All that notwithstanding, I am doing simply what all black women and men should be doing: trying to please all, blacks, whites and sundry, but only after making sure that I please God first and that I am not motivated by human respect.

Not one of us has any business cow-towing either to white, to black or to any other racial, ethnic or political power cell. Peter puts it all in perspective, standing on trial before the Sanhedrin and being questioned by the high priest:

"We must obey God rather than people" (Acts 5: 29).

Although all of us fail from time to time, at least we are making a conscious effort to avoid the curse of seeking human acceptance and approval as our primary ends.

Theological disagreements and the divergent use of political strategies and means should not create enemies. As long as all of us have our goals clearly in mind and agreed upon, it is of no great import whether all of us use the same delivery system to reach our goals. And which are these goals?

No one seems to disagree that the common goal of all African-American groups, ecclesiastical or otherwise, is self-identity.

Self-identity, of course, entails recognition of and pride in who we are, where we came from, our history and heritage, our culture and its full expression in all aspects of our life. As stated above, Jesus accomplished this in us.

Rest assured that I am speaking not only for myself, but for the vast majority of African-American Catholics when I say that our complaint about Imani Temple is not that they want to be autonomous, and certainly not that they think that they have their own unique vision and means of achieving black self-identity.

The bone which we have to pick with the followers of Imani Temple is that they insist on claiming that they are Catholic in the same way as the mainline African-American Catholics, whereas they are Catholic now only in the sense that Anglicans call themselves Catholic.

This is not being said as a put-down of Anglicans, Imani Temple followers or other Protestants. This is neither a claim of superiority nor a label of inferiority, but rather a simple statement of ecclesial and doctrinal diversity.

Translated, this means that African-Americans of the Roman Catholic faith have an ecumenical relationship with Imani Temple, just as they have with the Orthodox churches, the Episcopalians and our Protestant brethren.

In the growing spirit of ecumenism, which has brought nearly all Christian churches closer together, we must refuse to work as adversaries in a strident, argumentative, competitive pursuit of Christianity. Though different, our communities serve but one God and must collaborate on the one true identity in life: enfleshing the Good News of Jesus in all our sisters and brothers of every race and ethnic group here at home and throughout the world.

Your demand for reparations for the Catholic Church to all African-Americans has some basis in fact from historical instances of slavery, segregation and exploitation. However, it is unrealistic at this moment in history when few churches of any denomination possess much beyond their own needs.

Despite the land owned by various church-related groups, including the Vatican, bear in mind that even the Vatican has fallen on financial hard times and is in considerable debt.

Part of the reason for that is the ongoing outlay of monies for schools and inner-city apostolates, for social ministries and for the spread of the Gospel in less-developed countries.

At any rate, I agree with you that there is abundant room for reform within and without the Church. This is only a partial response to your letter, but I do hope that it supplies more light than heat to our discussion.

In all sincerity, I say, God bless you and prosper you in everything. I love all of you as my sisters and brothers, and therefore, I wish for you the same blessings which I myself desire to have.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

The bargain hunters were lined up three or even four deep at the meat counters at one of our supermarkets Friday morning, avid shoppers all, and all reaching for that special special bargain in chicken leg quarters. You may be sure that I was right there in the crowd, despite the chicken which I had bought last week at a good price at another of our area markets!

So, both for taste and budget reasons, you might want to pick up one of those 10-pound bags of chicken quarters. You'll get your money's worth! Chickens, whole or cut up, along with trays of parts, are an excellent buy at our markets just now. So are turkey wings and whole turkeys.

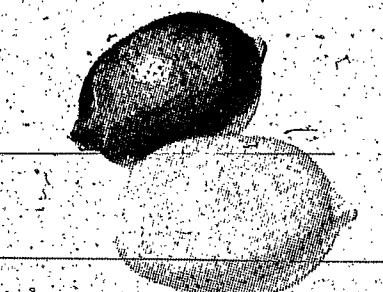

As for the chicken parts, you might want to use the thighs and drumsticks in the "Chicken Grandmere" recipe which I gave in the last "shopping" column—that is, the one reprinted on Thursday after gremilins in the paste-up department of the newspaper, or something, had hopelessly scrambled the sequence of the Sunday column typeset—well, all's well that ends well or words to that effect, so check Thursday's Echo for the recipe!

If you're wondering what I'm going to do with all those chicken legs and thighs, I'll tell you. (I've already packaged them in smaller portions than the 13 leg quarters I started with!)

Since I wasn't in an energetic chicken-cooking mood, I stashed my bounty in the freezer, leaving out a few quarters for simmering with lemon and seasonings and such, which I then took off the bones and cut for use in chicken-a-la-king and chicken salad, leaving me also some good chicken stock (as I find canned broth and the cubes and granules far too salty).

I shall reserve some of the drumsticks for visits from my grandsons, who are partial to the drumsticks; and I shall bake some of the thighs with fresh lemon and oregano, Greek cookery fashion.

Of course, you may use a cut up chicken or chicken parts in this recipe; just change and vary to suit yourself. Here's:

GREEK LEMON CHICKEN

3 lbs. chicken (beasts, thighs, legs or whatever you choose) skinned

1 tsp. garlic powder, tsp. salt, optional
2 tsp. dried whole oregano.
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/4 tsp. fresh lemon juice
3/4 cup water
3/4 cup all-purpose flour
3 to 4 Tbsp. vegetable oil
Lemon slices

Combine garlic powder, salt, pepper, lemon juice, oregano and water in a large bowl, and stir well. Add the chicken pieces, cover and refrigerate for 8 hours. Remove the chicken from the marinade, reserving the marinade. Place flour in a plastic bag, add the chicken, and shake well to coat.

Heat the oil in a large skillet, add the chicken and brown on all sides, then drain chicken on paper towels. Place in a 12-8-2-inch dish and pour the marinade over. Cover with aluminum foil, and bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes, or until tender. Transfer to serving dish and garnish with lemon slices. (4 servings)

And, for the healthful-eating conscious, remember that you're skipping those calories added when the chicken's fried! But, I love Southern Fried, don't you?

Enough about chickens—let's turn to the meat "buys" offered these days. Beef round steak is an especially good bargain, and can be enjoyed in so many ways. Rump roast and chuck roasts are other good buys, as are minute steaks.

Pork quarter loins are a good buy, as are whole boneless pork loins—no waste at all here! Ham-shank portions, as well as butt portions and whole hams, are also offered; take your choice according to your budget and family size and needs.

Between the lavish offerings of fresh vegetables and fruits at our Farmer's Market, and the all-but-overflowing bins at our super markets, there's no lack of color and taste in produce, is there?

Those sweet Vidalia onions from Georgia are still available, as are the sweet Italian red onions, and the usual other onions; and, how can one cook without onions, I ask you? I'm not sure that I could!

Here's how I'll cook the beef round steak which I bought:

GARLIC AND PEPPER STEAK WITH ONION MARMALADE

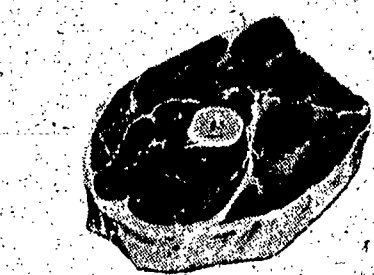

(This is different "Onion Marmalade" than the one I've been using, but it's tasty.)

1 (1 1/2 lb.) trimmed lean beef round steak (1 1/2 inch thick)
1 large garlic clove, minced
2 tsp. freshly ground pepper
1 1/2 lbs. onions, halved lengthwise and thinly sliced crosswise

4 bay leaves
1 cup dry red wine
1 Tbsp. olive oil
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 Tbsp. sugar
1 Tbsp. or more red wine vinegar

Salt and freshly ground pepper

Place steak in a large, non-metallic baking dish. Combine 1 garlic clove and pepper, and rub one side of the steak with half the mixture, then rub the other side with the remaining mixture. Sprinkle with onion and bay leaves, and pour the wine over. Refrigerate for at least 2 hours or overnight.

Remove the steak from the marinade. Heat the oil in a heavy skillet (preferably non-stick) over medium heat, add the marinade and the remaining two garlic cloves. Cook until the onions are tender and the liquid is absorbed, stirring frequently, for 35 minutes or so. Stir in the sugar and cook 5 minutes. Add a tablespoon of vinegar, taste, and add more vinegar if desired. Season the marmalade with salt and pepper, and remove the bay leaves.

Heat a ridged cast iron griddle or skillet over medium-high heat (or preheat broiler). Add steak and cook to desired doness, 8 to 10 minutes per side for medium-rare. Remove the steak from skillet and let stand 5 minutes before you cut diagonally into thin slices. Serve immediately with onion marmalade. (6 servings)

Tenderloin recipe takes first place

The fourth time was a charm for Ellisville resident Frances Reynolds, winner of the Mississippi State Beef Cook-Off with her recipe of Tenderloin Steak with Wine Sauce.

The 1991 contest, sponsored by the Mississippi Cattlewomen's Association and the Mississippi Cattle Industry Board, was held in Ellisville May 25. Five finalists were picked from the 64 entries by the National Livestock and Meat Board in Chicago.

TENDERLOIN STEAKS WITH WINE SAUCE

4 tenderloin steaks, 3/4 inch thick

1/4 cup steak seasoning
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 tablespoons margarine
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1/2 cup finely sliced green onion

1/2 cup beef broth
1/4 cup red wine
3 tablespoons margarine
Black pepper

Pour the steak seasoning on steak and sprinkle with the minced garlic on both sides. Let set for 30 minutes in the refrigerator.

Heat the margarine in a heavy skillet and reduce the heat and saute the steaks until done to your liking, about 5 minutes on each side for rare.

Remove steaks and keep warm. Add mushrooms and green onions to pan. Saute a few minutes on medium high until soft. Add beef broth and wine and bring to a boil. Add black pepper to taste.

Add margarine, small pieces at a time, whisking constantly until sauce is smooth. You may add 1 teaspoon cornstarch mixed with a little water to make the sauce smoother.

Whisk while heating. Pour the sauce over steaks. Sprinkle with some extra onions. Garnish as desired.

Marinating time: 30 minutes; preparation time: 15 to 20 minutes; cooking time: 5 to 10 minutes; and serves 4.

Taylor scholarship recipients named

Congressman Gene Taylor has announced the recipients of his 1991-92 scholarship. Taylor has awarded 26 $700 scholarships so that students can attend junior colleges throughout the Fifth Congressional District.

The scholarships are funded from a congressional pay raise Taylor does not accept. This year, he will donate approximately $20,000 in scholarships, half of which are going to be awarded to dependents of South Mississippi reservists and guardsmen who were called up for duty in Operation Desert Storm.

Taylor decided to dedicate half of this year's scholarships to dependents of guardsmen and reservists after a recent five-day congressional visit to the Middle East.

"I got to visit in the Middle East with many of our troops from South Mississippi," Taylor said. "Our guardsmen and reservists are under a tremendous amount of financial pressure. In a small way, I hope the scholarships will help."

The recipients were selected by a group of retired administrators and educators.

Local students include Wendy Morreale, Pass Christian High School; Billy M. Saunders, St. Stanislaus; Melanie E. Howard, Bay High School; Deborah E. Moore, Hancock High School; and James North, Bay High School.

Bradford, Crosby earn degrees

A total of 703 students received degrees during Delta State University's recent spring commencement exercises.

Among those receiving degrees were Jordan Bradford of Bay St. Louis, General Business; and Spurgeon Clark Crosby III of Waveland, Criminal Justice.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, JUNE 9, 1991-1B

BACK TO NATURE

By Lydia Schultz

If man had not intervened with man-made houses and supervision in the late 1960s when the Eastern Bluebird and the Purple Martin were decreasing in such large numbers; if we had let nature take its course, we would not be enjoying the strong comeback of these two birds. I'm not sure that the comeback is as strong with the Martin as it is with the Bluebird, but at least those are two examples of our intervention, helping and not hurting.

Two birds that were introduced into this country at the turn of the century are responsible for many of the declines of our native, nesting birds. They are the European Starling and the House Sparrow which is actually a member of the Finch family. They are tenacious, militant and prolific. Our native cavity nesters rarely stand a chance when fighting to keep occupancy of a nest site. Do we let nature take its course when we see a battle? I don't.

Two weeks ago I noticed a Common Flicker and Great-crested Flycatcher battling over one woodpecker box that had been totally neglected by all for a couple years. All of a sudden it was in high demand.

I had noticed the flycatchers busily carrying nesting material for several days so the flicker was the apparent thief in this instance. Wishing well for both of them, we brought another empty box from the back of the yard.

Judy Toups was passing by that morning and suggested that both boxes be put on the same tree. Upon checking in the Bent series of ornithological information on flickers, one detailed bit of writing describes several dead trees in a four-foot square area housing four species of birds: Common flickers, Eastern screech owls, Great-crested flycatchers and Downy woodpeckers. So, I felt better about the arrangement.

That afternoon, any fear I had dissipated when the flicker was in the original box and the flycatcher in the new one just above. We had satisfied both, and all would live happily everafter—or so I thought. I could even envision young flickers flitting all over the yard, being taught by the adults to act and eat like flickers. I could see flycatchers flycatching. But it wasn't meant to be.

A hated starling showed his ugly yellow bill and I chased it away. A Red-bellied woodpecker perched on top of the flicker's box. He pecked as though to announce his presence. Then he hopped to the front of the box, poked his head in and flew away. That was the last activity I ever saw at that box. I still don't know why.

The flycatchers hung around for a couple days more and then moved on. I hear them in the area but not at our boxes. I'm disappointed but I suppose I can console myself with "Nature took its course." As with the Saints, I can always say, "Maybe next year!"

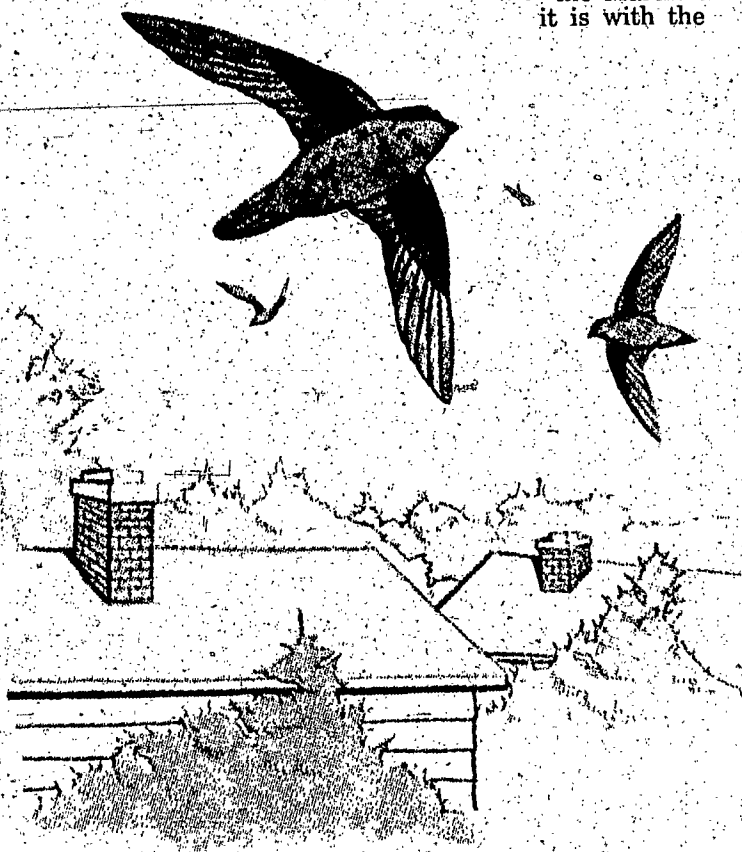

One nice thing is that the Screech owls have returned and are doing exactly the same thing on the exact same dates as last year. If all goes well, we'll have several downy-covered owls fledging July.

Chimney swifts discovered our chimney in May. These incredibly interesting birds fall under the category of "nuisance" for some people. They can be noisy. But a Chuck-will's-widow singing at night is noise to some people. A Mockingbird deciding to become nocturnal, singing all night, is noise to some people. None of these bother me, and I was happy to offer them a home. Their wing movements will clean my chimney; they'll leave before I need to use it; and it didn't cost me a cent. In addition, they are extremely efficient insect eaters.

So we swing into summer with nesting activity underway. Summer residents have staked their territories. And I have ideas of where and how to position those houses differently for "next year."

Gardeners take heed: don't give up!

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative

In all likelihood it is raining as you read this. Why shouldn't it be? It has rained almost every weekend since spring began and a good many week days as well.

We all know the rain can stop, and the weather turn dry enough to leave us begging for rain, but that's hard to imagine right now.

We've watched the azaleas, dogwood and redbud come into bloom and have the blooms ruined by rain. We've seen the bearded iris blooms bent over by winds and heavy rains, and most recently we've seen the peonies bury their faces in the mud.

Peonies just weren't meant to bloom in wet weather. The flowers are so large and heavy that even light rains cause them to bend over.

Lawns have gone unmowed because the grass has seldom been dry enough to

Vegetable gardeners have lots to complain about: not being able to plant, having what they planted drown or wash out, seeds rotting in the soil, soil eroding, and tomato plants getting old in their little plastic cups and weather vegetables this spring.

Remember though, you have another opportunity to plant most of these in late summer for a fall crop.

Fortunately, time is left to plant tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, okra, cucumbers, pole and bush lima beans, pole snap beans, sweet potatoes and Southern peas.

Cantaloupe and watermelons can still be planted, but they will be late maturing. Don't plan on having them for the 4th of July.

Summer squash varieties such as straightneck, crookneck, pattypan and zucchini can still be planted, but you'll have to watch for aphids, cucumber beetles, squash vine borers and squash bugs.

The insect pressure will be higher on some of these late planted vegetables, so check plants daily for insects and take appropriate control measures before populations get out of control.

Insects, particularly corn earworm, can be expected to be serious problems on late-planted sweet corn, but don't let the threat keep you from planting.

Budworm also may be more severe, so be prepared to spray or dust. Begin treating for earworms when the first silk shows on the ears and treat as long as the silk appears fresh or as close to harvest as the insecticide will allow.

It is still too early to plant pumpkins and winter squash such as hubbard and butternut, but the large gourds such as dipper and bird house need to be planted as soon as possible.

If you have seeds of cool weather vegetables that you didn't get to plant, store them in a cool, dry place so you'll have them when planting time rolls around in late summer.

Seeds that are left exposed to high temperatures and/or high humidity will lose much of their viability by late summer planting time.

and misshapen.

When the weather turns dry and hot, a thick layer of organic mulch over the soil surface will keep the soil from becoming too hot and

You may feel discouraged and disappointed with your garden's progress so far, but it's too early to toss in the towel.

Pole snap beans are better able to produce under our summer weather conditions than are bush snap beans, so you may want to consider pole beans, especially if you live in south Mississippi. During hot weather the beans on the bush type plants are frequently tough will slow the loss of water from the soil surface.

You may feel discouraged and disappointed with your garden's progress so far, but it is too early to toss in the towel. Real gardeners still have a lot of fight left in them, and about six months of gardening time is still ahead of us.

Eley marches in victory parade

A U.S. Army Reservist from Bay St. Louis marched down Washington's Constitution Avenue June 8 as part of the national victory parade for the Persian Gulf war.

Sgt. Fredia J. Eley is to be part of a special 197-person formation representing Army Reservists called to active duty from units in the 5th U.S. Army.

Those reserve units, located in Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas, supplied more than 12,000 troops for Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of troops in the Persian Gulf, led the procession.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The monthly birthday party, sponsored by the Clement R. Bon Temps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 for the residents of the Hotel Reed Nursing Center, was Thursday, May 30.

Lena Mae Oustalet played the piano while Roslyn Weathers led the singing and Oris Planchard and Elaine Roberts went among the residents to visit and encourage them to join in the activity.

The dining room was decorated in red, white and blue balloons in remembrance of Memorial Day. There were baskets of flowers on the tables, and the residents were in a festive mood.

As Happy Birthday was sung to the celebrants they were handed gifts, which were received with happy smiles.

Cathy Long, director of activities, Sam Compston and Connie Gersenderfer, supervisor of nurses, were pleased to see the responses of the residents and also encouraged them to participate in the singing.

Refreshments were served by Oris Planchard and Elaine Robert.
